LOSES GAME
BY ONE POINT*Curtin's Placement Kick
Meant Victory For
Trenton Catholic*FINAL SCORE IS 7 TO 6*Smallest Trenton Team In Years to Face
Bristol

TRENTON, Sept. 27.—"Skipper" Curtin's placement kick for the extra point conversion gave Trenton Catholic a one-point victory over the Bristol High Bunnies last night on Dunn Field before a crowd of 4,000. Final score was 7-6.

The Golden Wave scored in the last three minutes of the tilt after "Henny" Kornstedt had fumbled on the 11-yard line and Kelly recovered to give Catholic possession of the pig-skin. Bristol held for three downs and on the fourth try, Cunningham took the ball around end to score.

In trying for the extra point the pass from center was high, but Crush stretched out his arms, caught the ball, and placed it so that Curtin could get off his boot which was the winning point of the hard-fought contest.

It was the smallest Trenton Catholic team in years to face Bristol, and for the first half of the tilt the Bunnies outplayed their Jersey rivals and registered five first downs to Catholic's one. But Trenton was the victim of many penalties which cost them considerable yardage. The final score of first downs showed seven for Bristol and six for Trenton Catholic.

"Jimmy" Sottile, who played a bang-up game for the Bunnies both on the offense and defense, scored the Bristol touchdown. From the Bristol 48, Monachello threw a pass. Curtin attempted to intercept and deflected the ball into the waiting arms of Sottile who ran 22 yards to score the six-pointer.

Alex Monte was rushed in his attempt to drop-kick the extra point with the result that it went wide of its mark.

Cunningham gained the most yardage for the Trenton team.

The Catholic-Bristol series now stands at two victories each and a deadlock.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

"Bad Blood"

Washington, Sept. 27. WHETHER Congress is called in special session to deal with the emergency in Europe or does not convene until January, it is an understatement to say that the prospects for prompt, intelligent and effective action on any of the vital questions which will confront it are not good. Perhaps the conference with congressional leaders the President has called for Monday will change this outlook. But too much reliance should not be placed on that.

THE reasons are obvious. It is not only that the legislative branch is controlled by one party and the executive branch by the other. That is always an unfortunate state of affairs in our system. Even under the happiest circumstances it makes for governmental impotency and general futility. But this time it occurs under the worst possible conditions. For one thing, in six months from the date of the regular opening, the national candidates of the two parties will be placed in the field and in ten months the presidential elections will be held. Thus, from the date of the opening, politics will dominate, permeate, saturate practically everything in the country.

THERE is no way to escape that. It is the year of primaries and conventions. It is the period when politics climaxes in the United States and political propaganda reaches CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Sept. 27.—Two men met instant death by electrocution and a third narrowly escaped a similar fate here yesterday afternoon while engaged in moving two large steel tanks.

The victims: Frank B. Dyer, 26, of 648 Pine street, Bristol. Employed by James Morrissey, Philadelphia. Daniel Costello, 28, 3144 Tulip street, Philadelphia. Employed by the Trumbull Industrial Service, Youngstown, Ohio.

The man to escape is Richard McHale, 33, 2825 N. 9th street, Philadelphia, employed by the same firm as Costello.

McHale is in the Nazareth Hospital, Philadelphia, and is thought to be in fair condition. He was severely shocked and burned.

All three men were working at the plant of the Cornwells Chemical Corp., State road and Traylor avenue.

A large crane operated by Cornell Gill, Richboro, had been used in loading two large steel tanks upon a truck. When the two tanks were loaded it was found that the weight was too great for the truck. One tank was removed. It was placed upon the ground and the three men were pushing it back off the roadway of a private drive into the plant, nearer the fence.

The cable of the boom of the crane came, it is thought, within about one foot of the high tension wires of the Philadelphia Electric Company, carrying 33,000 volts.

The "juice," it is believed, jumped from the high tension wires to the steel cable and then to the tank.

In the grounding of the current lights in this area were put out of commission for nearly two hours.

Dyer and Costello had both hands terribly burned. The former was rushed to the Harriman Hospital at Bristol but was pronounced dead upon arrival. Costello and McHale were taken to the Nazareth Hospital, where Costello was pronounced dead.

Bucks County Coroner J. Alfred Righy viewed the body and is conducting an investigation.

As the tank was within two inches of the ground, the boom came near enough to the power line for the current to jump the gap, and the three men holding the metal tank at the end of the boom formed the "ground" for the 33,000 volts coursing from the wire.

It was over in a matter of seconds and the three men were inert on the ground.

The project on which they were working was the installation and assembly of a tank to receive gases formed in the burning of sulphur.

The project was under the supervision of the general contractor, Trumbull Industrial Service, of Youngstown, O., which had hired the crane and operator from James Morrissey.

Dyer was the husband of Rita M. Dyer (nee Dolan), and son of Edward J. and the late Alice Dyer. He also survived by two sisters and a brother.

Born here, Dyer spent 3½ years in the U. S. Army, and served for 18 months in Europe during World War II. He was a member of Cornwells Fire Co., and of the Ramblers Hockey Team, Bristol.

Service for Mr. Dyer will be held at his late home in Bristol, Tuesday, at two p. m. Burial in Bristol Cemetery will be in charge of the Wm. L. Murphy Est., funeral directors. Friends are invited to call Monday evening.

TAPPING PLUTONIUM

The United States Atomic Energy Commission, disclosing the development of a new type of atomic reaction pile that is actually "a controlled form of the atomic bomb," made no claim that its scientists are close to a method of harnessing the energy of plutonium to industrial uses. But its announcement at least implied a significant step in that direction.

Until the advent of this plant the tremendous power locked up in plutonium could be released—it was released at Hiroshima and Nagasaki—but only through an explosion. Now it can be tapped over a long period of time. Obviously that represents a great stride forward, although it is evident that many problems still are to be solved.

It seems clear, to judge from the statement, that the new plant cannot extract the energy of plutonium exactly as desired. It is revealed that the "overall energy although 'the concentration is in-released is comparatively small' tense." Also, the reactor produces "a very large quantity of neutrons and other radiations." The important point, however, is that tapping is now possible.

At the same time, this development may make the problem of controlling atomic weapons still more difficult and complicated. If plutonium, the substance used in the atomic bomb, is to become a source of energy for peacetime purposes, it will not be easy to find safeguards to insure against its use as a weapon.

Meanwhile, it is reassuring to know that American scientists are continuing to add to their knowledge of nuclear energy. Leadership in this field is America's best safeguard.

"MESS" OF TROUBLE

Robert Moses minced no words in his report on the administration of the coal mines in the Ruhr Valley. He called it a "mess," and he referred to "British control, American advice, local regional planning, administration and housing supervisions, union representation and half a dozen other ties and influences, all of them operating at cross purposes."

If these allegations are justified—and the low rate of coal production indicates that the present system is far from successful—the time to do something about it is now.

its full and frightening growth. Inevitably, from January to November, every speech will have a political flavor and every proposal be viewed from the political angle. Consequently, this is a great obstacle to clear thinking and adequate performance. However, what makes the present situation most depressing is the admitted bad blood between President Truman and the Republican leaders in Congress. Its existence is much too clear to dispute. The gap between them is personal as well as political. The job of bridging it will require a higher degree of usefulness patriotism than either side has shown evidences of possessing.

can leaders, no matter how justified they may feel in their bitterness, cannot afford to let their personal feelings and political desires make them refuse an appeal to put aside a crippling partisanship and hurtful personalities when danger threatens the country as it now undoubtedly does. If, under such circumstances, Mr. Truman is not big enough—and is too political—to rise above his animosities and become conciliatory, and if the Republicans are too small and political to accept overtures and respond to the sort of appeals that should be made, then both he and they are unworthy of respect and will have earned the contempt of all good citizens.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

NATURALLY, Mr. Truman's friends justify his stand on these questions and make countercharges against the Republicans. Silly speeches, such as the inept temperate chairman, Mr. Gael Sullivan, has been making and the hot attacks on Mr. Truman by various Republican spokesmen, unquestionably have increased the "bad blood" to a point where there is little good will left on either side. Add all this up and it is not easy to see how anything in the nature of bipartisan co-operation between the President and Congress is to be achieved either in a special session or the regular one. Yet, there probably has never been in a period of peace a moment when such bipartisan co-operation on both foreign and domestic affairs was more urgently needed.

AT NO time in our history have foreign affairs seemed more menacing or the necessity for American solidarity in dealing with the grave issues involved more acute. On the home front there is the vital problem of prices, to solve which (if really ruinous inflation is to be averted) nonpolitical action seems essential. Yet, as the time for action approaches, each side is so busy blaming the other that neither has a solution. It is not surprising that many are appalled at the outlook—that those who want Congress to meet quickly shudder at what will happen when it does.

CONFRONTED by so real a crisis, it does seem that for the good of the nation and the world, those in power must put aside politics, hatred and prejudices in order to avert calamity. Mr. Truman badly needs the co-operation of the Republican leaders with whom he is not now on very good terms. To get this, he not only should call off the Gael Sullivan but he should make every personal effort to regain the good will and respect he has lost in this group. No matter what the personal cost, he should not hesitate to pay it.

Almighty God, unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid, we praise Thee for another week of life in Thy care. Comfort, we pray Thee, all those who suffer in pain and distress. Heal those who are broken in body and mind and spirit. Strengthen those who without Thee would stumble and fall. Preserve us all from evil and keep us safe. Direct our feet on the Sabbath to a place of wor-ship where we may have our faith renewed, our hearts warmed and our souls strengthened for the trials of life. Keep us reverent in the presence of holy things, and humble in the pres-ence of Thee, great God, our strength and our Redeemer. Through Jesus Christ our Lord we pray. Amen.

In addition to the Jersey-Pennsylvania competition, the grid ryal will see two brothers as rival coaches and a third brother in the O'Donnell line.

"Mike" De Risi is coach for the St. Ann's team, handling the reins of the club for the first time since 1933 when he produced the first St. Ann's team to be crowned Bucks County champions with an undefeated season.

Coach of the O'Donnell team is Mike's younger brother, Gene. Last season, Gene piloted the O'Donnells to the Mercer County championship of New Jersey, also winning the Trenton City League.

The gasmen need the win to even the series, St. Ann's having taken a 2-1 lead last week with a one-sided 24-6 victory. Should Voltz deadlock the series, the fifth game will be sponsored by the league with the receipts being divided among the other teams of the circuit.

Testifies at Hearing

Former Assistant Secretary of State and former Ambassador to the Argentine, George Messersmith, testifies before the House Un-American Activities Committee, Washington, in connection with the actions of Hanns Eisler, Hollywood composer and former German Communist. Notice to Advertisers

Due to changed conditions in the publication of a daily newspaper the Courier finds it absolutely necessary to set an advertising "dead-line" and hereafter reserves the right to reject advertising copy received later than seven days previous to the date of publication. This means that copy for advertising to be inserted in the Thursday issue of the Courier must be in the Courier office not later than noon of the Thursday previous to publication. The Courier may also find it necessary to reject copy ordered for a certain day due to a shortage of newsprint. The supply of newsprint which the Courier has on hand sometimes does not warrant accepting copy for a certain date as it might on that date make necessary the printing of a paper of more pages than the stock of newsprint on hand warrants. We trust our advertisers will co-operate with us and they can rest assured that the Courier will do all that is possible. But we do not want advertisers to feel discriminated against if it is found necessary to reject copy for the date ordered.

Christian Education Conference Held Here

One of a series of fall conferences on Christian Education on "The Crusade for Christ" was held in Bristol Methodist Church yesterday afternoon and last evening. This particular conference stressed the fifth objective, that of increasing enrollment and attendance in the Church School. Held under auspices of the Philadelphia Conference Board of Education, the district superintendent and the bishop, the meetings have been scheduled throughout this month in various parts of the Philadelphia conference.

The first meeting yesterday opened at four o'clock, with Miss Ethel Ristine as speaker. Miss Ristine also addressed the group at a session at 7:15. She stressed the need of genuine interest on the part of the church workers in residents of the community, and urged continued effort to secure response to Christian activity. Opportunities of service, methods of enrollment, etc., were touched upon. The devotional period early in the evening was conducted by the Rev. Guy Everly, of Morrisville.

Dinner was served in the church social hall by members of the Church School Board, with Mrs. Leslie Moss in charge.

Separating into study groups at 7:45, the following were the classes and instructors: Children's work, Mrs. William H. VanVoorhees; intermediate, Mrs. Roger C. Stimson; senior young people, the Rev. Roger C. Stimson; adults, the Rev. Paul W. Foley; administration and general supervision, Miss Elisabeth D. Eggleston, director of Christian Education of Phila. Conference; visual aid, the Rev. Henry R. Bauers.

The Rev. Charles Wellers is pastor of the hostess church.
